	balance of $7,564 last year. The cost in interest and fees amounted to more than $1,000 for the typical budget. If you just said, "Budget - what budget?", you know what I mean. Truth is, most of us go on spending sprees from time to time. But, when power shopping creates the illusion of success, even as debts spiral out of control, it has become a weakness. Some obvious signs that spending is out of control include making minimum payments on your credit cards, late fees, bounced cheques, lack of a 7M Page 4 of 4 budget and loss of sleep over money worries. 1. How many people in America have credit cards? 2. Why does the author seem to think we go on big shopping sprees? 3. What indicates you may be shopping more than you should? 4. What is the meaning of the expression 'spending spree'? 5. What is the author trying to tell us, in this paragraph?
